

CORRUPTION IN SYRIA: LESSONS LEARNED

A STATEMENT BY
NAWAL YAZAJI

In order to eliminate and curb the problem of corruption, I believe that all citizens are equally obliged to safeguard the supreme interests of the state as well as the interests of individuals and groups. If we succeed in safeguarding the interests of individuals, groups and the supreme interests of the state, we will be able to reduce corruption in one way or another. However, I do not support the idea of focusing on drafting and including anti-corruption articles in the constitution.
